The information disclosure statement filed October 7, 2005 fails to comply with 37 CFR 1.98(a)(2), which requires a legible copy of each cited foreign patent document; each non-patent literature publication or that portion which caused it to be listed; and all other information or that portion which caused it to be listed. It has been placed in the application file, but the information referred to therein has not been considered.

35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 1-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is not supported by either a specific asserted utility or a well established utility.

The specification on page 1 states that the new derivatives of azithromycin possess valuable properties. However, the specification fails to teach what those valuable properties are and fails to state for what purpose the claimed derivatives are used.

Claims 16-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claims 16 and 17 are indefinite in that in that it is not clear which compound is being methylated. Further azithromycin of formula 9 and azithromycin of formula 11 have not been defined.

Claims 1-17 also rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph. Specifically, since the claimed invention is not supported by either a specific asserted utility or a well established utility for the reasons set forth above, one skilled in the art clearly would not know how to use the claimed invention.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

Claims 1-5, 10 and 12-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) as being anticipated by Tenengauzer et al (U.S. Patent No. 6,764,997).

Tenengauzer et al disclose in column 1, lines 34-46 that azithromycin is subject to degradation that can occur during manufacturing process. Tenengauzer et al further teach that the amine group of azithromycin is susceptible to oxidation and that azithromycin is susceptible to degradation if exposed to elevated temperatures during manufacturing process. Since the claimed azithromycin derivatives of formula 4, 6 and 7 are formed by oxidation of amine and the azithromycin derivative of formula 8 is formed by heating, said derivatives are seen to be inherently to be present as azithromycin degradation products during a manufacturing process.
